Agnigarh is a hillock located in Tezpur, Assam, India. In Hindu scriptures, it is the site of the fortress which was built by Banasuraa to keep his daughter Usha in isolation. The name itself is derived from the words 'Agni' (meaning fire) and 'garh' (meaning fortress or wall) in Sanskrit. Legend has it that this fortress was surrounded by fire at all times so that nobody could go in or out of the perimeter without permission. Usha fell in love with Aniruddha in her dreams, not knowing that he was the grandson of Krishna. Her companion Chitrlekha identified him by painting his portrait from Usha's description. Chitrlekha Udyan in Tezpur also known as 'Cole Park,' the biggest park in Tezpur, is named after her. Chitrlekha was not only an artist but one possessing mystical powers. Aniruddha was Krishna's grandson and Usha, the daughter of an Asura king, therefore was no way any side would consent to their love. She flew one night and brought Aniruddha to Usha's place while he was still sleeping, using her powers. When Aniruddha opened his eyes and saw Usha, he fell in love immediately. However, Banasura was furious on knowing this, and tied him with snakes and imprisoned him. Lord Krishna, however had agreed for their marriage and had wanted for Banasura to consent for the same. Banasura was a great devotee of Lord Shiva, and as a boon had asked him and his entire family to guard the gates of his city, Tezpur. He therefore was not at all scared by Lord Krishna's wrath. A war ensued between the Hari (Lord Krishna and his followers) and the Hars (Lord Shiva and his followers), rivers of blood flowed and the city was named Tezpur (City of Blood). Both sides were nearly wiped out and a final battle followed between Lord Shiva and Lord

Krishna, Lord Brahma requested both of them to stop the war by putting him between them. A discussion followed in which Lord Krishna made Lord Shiva see that Banasura was acting wrongly in imprisoning his grandson, and had even disrespected Lord Shiva himself in asking him and his family to be his gate keepers. Lord Shiva agreed, and Banasura was brought. Fearing his life, he immediately agreed to the marriage. The stone sculptures on the Agnigarh hill portray this entire picturesque story of love and great war.

The students were taken to visit the Rang Ghar, Kareng Ghar (Gargaon Palace), 15 kms from Sibsagar. Later in the evening the students halted in the Prashanti Tourist Lodge for the night. Next morning the students were taken to visit the following temples- Shiva Dol, Vishnu Dol and Devi Dol on the banks of the Sibsagar Tank (also known as Borpukhuri Tank). The last destination was the Talatal Ghar which was a 18th century palace and military base of the Ahom rulers. The visit to Sibsagar was both an educational and a cultural trip. The above-mentioned monuments are a standing example of outstanding Ahom architecture which is a synthesis of various cultures, traditions, religions. The visit enhanced the knowledge of the students about these historical places and the rich cultural heritage of the state of Assam. Overall, it was a great experience on part of both the teachers and the students. Students were encouraged to learn more through practical experiences. Nevertheless, to say, this trip also instilled leadership quality among them.

TEZPUR, March 14: "Team Tezpur," a socio-cultural organisation, under the banner of Lakhyetan Tezpur and in association with the district administration, Department of Tourism and Darrang College organised the Second Borluit Kite Festival—a carnival of indigenous sports, art, culture and rural tourism—at Darrang College playground on Sunday.

Young participants at the kite festival.

Rabha. In his speech, Rabha said "Team Tezpur" is a platform for the youths of Tezpur and adjoining areas to showcase their talents in various fields, including sports, art and culture, tourism, science and technology.

"In June and July, a special workshop on science and technology will be organised among the budding talents so that they can be motivated towards building a career in the field of medical and engineering," he said. TU registrar Dr Biran Das urged Team Tezpur to give special focus on traditional sports and also to get the young generation involved in the field of science education.

The event was conducted by the president of Team Tezpur and vice president of Assam Olympic Association Anup Choudhury and general secretary Nilakhyi Sarma. It was moderated by Pranjit Baruah, a member of the organisation.

Talking about the vision of Team Tezpur, Nilakhyi Sarma mentioned that Tezpur is arguably one of the cleanest tier three cities of India and has consistently acted as a vanguard for preservation and development of Assamese culture.

Cultural icons like Kalageta Bishnu Prasad Rabha, Popkonwar Jyoti Prasad Agarwala and Nataswaya Phani Sarma and even Dr Bhupen Hazarika began their journeys from this city. From Lord Krishna's mythology to Hazarika Barman to Bhanu Raja and Haribhai, Tezpur is full of historical monuments and symbols of the bygone era, which remind people of the historical significance of this place. Like most places in Assam, the tourism industry is still nascent in Tezpur even though it attracts a large number of visitors every year. However, it is yet to be developed as a major tourist destination," Sarma said, highlighting their vision to give a facelift to historical sites like Rudrapur, Kalageta Bishnu Prasad Rabha memorial, etc.

As per the G.U. syllabus, there is a paper name (Field Techniques in Geography, GGY-HC-5026) assigned for the 5th-semester Honours students. The content of this paper is based on field surveys of nearby villages or within the periphery location of the institutions. So, we, the geography department, selected the site named Besseria Village in Tezpur. We took the students of the 5th semester of the department to this site, and various aspects were studied in this village. The students were divided into multiple groups and assigned various topics to them. The topic varies from physical to socio-cultural aspects. Under physical, the Depota River had been studied regarding the nature and characteristics of the selected river site. Under socio-economic aspects, we studied their occupation structures, livelihood patterns, impacts of the flood on their sustainable development, agricultural pattern and social structures of the villages. In this survey, the village head and the local people greatly contributed by helping our students in collecting the data. From the survey, students learned about the importance of the survey, the relationship between natural and human beings, the impact of nature on human livelihood and the socio-economic conditions of the villages. All the faculties of the department were involved in this survey to guide the students and make them the importance of this subject by making them aware of the role of nature upon human beings and human being role upon nature.

Name of the activity: Educational Tour

Organizing Unit: Dept. of History

Date/s of the activity: 05/02/2023

No. of students participated: 37 students

Write-up about the programme:

The Department of History on 2nd May, 2023 had conducted an educational tour for the 4th semester (Honours) student. It was a day trip to Shillong (Meghalaya) which is around 244 km from Tezpur. The theme of the tour was 'The Sino-Indian War, 1962: Perspectives from Oral History'. This trip was based on the compulsory skill enhancement elective course (HIS-SE-4014: Oral Culture & Oral History). In 1962, Sino-Indian conflict stemmed from a Himalayan border dispute, with China asserting rights over Aksai China area and claimed Tibet. After the 1959 Tibetan uprising, Dalai Lama's asylum in India sparked tension. In 1959, the Dalai Lama's flight to Tezpur triggered Chinese advances towards the city, affecting its plains. Chinese forces reached Bhalukpong route to Tezpur, causing evacuation. During the 1962 war, Tezpur underwent transformation into a ghost town. Among its victim was Winghing Tham, representing the Chinese families in Assam who endured considerable suffering during the conflict. This field trip sheds light on the impact of the war on Tezpur, its populace highlighting the plight of the Chinese community and the resulting familial separations.

This trip investigated the impact of these events in the existing circumstances, their repercussions in Tezpur's populace, and the preparations made for evacuation to gain insights, we conduct two case studies: interview of Winghing Tham (of Chinese origin) and interview of Meenakshi Bhuyan (of Indian origin). The survey was carried out in Dekargaon, where there is still a Chinese family and in Porua Chariali, where Meenakshi Bhuyan lives. The oral investigation relied primarily in primary date and some secondary data. To collect primary data, direct personal interview was made with the respondents. The secondary data was obtained via the internet.

The study was conducted to understand the impact of Indo war (1962). To know, two case studies were taken out. One from family of Chinese origin (Winghing Tham) and other is from family of Indian origin (Meenakshi Bhuyan). Tezpur was the most affected place among the Assam cities and towns. The populace was compelled to evacuate Meenakshi Bhuyan said that the 1962 war changed her small town forever. Tezpur was transformed into ghost town in the time of war. One of the victims of the 1962 was Winghing Tham. It is known where they originally came from the Chinese family in Assam suffered a lot in the war of 1962, got arrested, many Chinese were detained in the Delhi camp and got separated from their family

We arrived at the designated spot at about 11 am, and we immediately made rush to have the lucrative breakfast. Then came the actual work. The team was divided into the groups and they disbursed in different directions to collect data and prepare the survey. The students had mixed experiences while dealing with the rural households. Many of them suspected the surveyors to be some Government agents and they had inhibitions and mental barriers in providing the desired data.
